Commercial clubs are a recognized was. Creakers don't want them, and certainly they don't want creakers, for their mission is to exterminate that unprofitable and disagreeable class. Hopkinsville cannot sapend a few dollars more timely than in keeping alive her club has been invaluable. It has added millions to her active industries, and is universally recognized as the most powerful trade organization ever started in that city. The club has never received the support it should have from Hopkinsville, and has parent forms and has present to show the t tiently plodded on its way, doing its best to shape, encourage and invite useful projects and enterprises, accepting the approval of a good concepting the approval of a good con-
